Borderless - United States of North America Erika Harrsch

- "United States of North America (2009), a fictitious passport, that joins the three NAFTA members' passport heraldics: Canada, U.S.A. and México. This piece expands the boundaries of these individual countries, questions the concept of nation, reflects on the NAFTA treaty and raises a conversation about immigration. The Monarch Butterfly, known for its migrations between Canada and Mexico, is an emblematic representation of a nation without borders; a linked reference with people's multi-national, multi-generational migrations that are increasing in today's global world in constant mobility.- Erika Harrsch 2009 "Erika Harrsch's work proves that borders do not exist when it comes to artistic creation." Graciela Kartofel, Art Nexus -Born in Mexico City, Erika Harrsch has lived and worked in Mexico, Italy, Germany and New York. Her image-making tools include painting, photography, video and a kind of scenario building based on elements in artificial and natural environments, which find expression in the form of installations and three-dimensional photographic works. Her work has been the subject of solo and group exhibitions at galleries, museums, Art biennials in Mexico, USA, Brasil, Argentina, Korea, China, Belgium, Germany, UK, Sweden, Spain, Poland and Turkey.
