River Voices on the Duckabush Bill Hoke

Life comes in flashes, an image, a word, something from a family picnic, something dad said, an epiphany, a feeling needing catharsis, an unresolved or unrequited lost love, the magic of a mountain vista, the sights and smells and life lessons found in the halls of a nursing home and they roll and roil around in your head and what Bill Hoke has done is to capture his and in his tight economy of words and eye for the ordinary, he offers surprise, humanity, humility and the possibility that everyone has a story to tell, squeezing out words, sometimes in perfect agreement.
