Diogenes Station: A Perspective on Transformational Leadership Thirty Years Later William G Hanne

At the height of the Cold War, Colonel William Hanne was selected to command Diogenes Station, an isolated, high-security, U.S. Army field station in Turkey.

Being selected for a command as a colonel is an honor; being selected as commander of 500 men and women under stress is a challenge.

Dr. William G. Hanne, Colonel (U.S. Army ret.), shares the techniques of meeting such a challenge through transformational leadership and MBWA--Management by Walking Around, techniques that will be useful to anyone who must assume a leadership role and bring out the best in every one of the people on their team.
